MID-PACIFIC STORM DELAYS AIR FLIGHT

Amelia Earhart and Aides Await Better Weather Before Taking Off

MAY LEAVE TONIGHT

Three Men to Accompany Aviatrix Part of Way

OAKLAND, Calif., March 15 — (UP) — Amelia Earhart Putnam watched the weather charts today, ready to begin a flight around the earth at the first break in mid-Pacific storms.

There was a possibility that she may take off tonight for Honolulu, 2,400 miles away, which is the first goal on a 27,000-mile flight with at least one stop scheduled in each of the five continents.

A strong westerly wind still lashed the coast and a Pan American clipper plane that took off for Honolulu Saturday night and then turned back to Alameda was still grounded. J. A. Riley, meteorologist at the Oakland airport, said a low pressure area was holding virtually stationary over the Honolulu route, and he doubted that Miss Earhart could start her trip for another day or more.

To Fly Half Way Alone

Three men will accompany her as far as Honolulu, one of them will go as far as Darwin, Australia, the half-way mark, and then the woman flier will set on alone. She already has crossed both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans alone in planes and if the present venture succeeds, she will be the first woman to have circled the globe by air.

The delays did not disturb her usual calm and poise. "It's too bad about the weather, but I'm not on any schedule and there's no harm done," she remarked.

She left most of the preparations to her husband-manager, George P. Putnam, movie executive who will stay at home and follow the progress of her trip by radio.

Last night she spent most of her time before retirement signing stamp cachets which will finance part of the $100,000 expedition. She will carry about 4,000 cachets for $5 each, and several thousand for $2.50 each. The rest of the money is being supplied by Putnam and Purdue university which is interested in the scientific aspects of the flight.

NORRIS OFFERS COMPROMISE FOR COURT REVISION

WASHINGTON, March 15. — (UP)—Sen. George W. Norris, R., Nebr., today presented a compromise judiciary plan calling for both congressional action and a constitutional amendment.

The Norris plan, submitted during a momentary lull in the dispute over President Roosevelt's court reorganization program, comprised two parts intended to be acted upon as a unit.

The plan:

1. A congressional act requiring more than a two-thirds vote by the supreme court to invalidate acts of congress.

2. A constitutional amendment establishing nine-year terms for all federal justices including justices of the supreme court.

The Norris program was intended as a substitute for President Roosevelt's plan which calls for appointment of six new justices to the supreme court if justices over 70 years of age do not retire.

Norris has criticized Mr. Roosevelt's program but has indicated he will support it providing agreement is not reached on some substitute.

Submission of the Norris substitute came after he addressed the senate last week proposing that a drive for a constitutional amendment go hand in hand with legislative court action.

ACTION ATTACKS WILL OF WAYNE TOWNSHIP MAN

An action contesting the will of William H. Taylor, of Wayne township, who died Feb. 8, was filed in common pleas court Monday. The estate is valued at $26,933.

Plaintiffs in the case are William Taylor, Elkhart, Ind.; Norval Taylor, Gary, Ind.; Mrs. Mary Taylor French, Bluffton, Ind.; Mrs. Carrie Taylor Barr, Anderson, Ind., and Mrs. Anna Taylor Grove, Tulsa, Okla. Defendants are Mertie and Doran Drake, Decatur, Ind., Clara B. Spangler, Pickaway county, and M. C. Seyfert, Jr., as executor of the estate.

The plaintiffs allege the document of their uncle, filed in probate court, is not his last will. By the terms of his will now on file the plaintiffs are bequeathed $100 each. The defendants, Mertie and Doran Drake, niece and nephew, and Clara Spangler are each bequeathed one third of the remainder of the estate.

CHRYSLER WINS COURT'S DECREE AGAINST UNION

Circuit Judge Campbell Sets Wednesday at 9 as Final Hour

MURPHY CALLS OFFICIALS

Permanent Machinery to End Labor Trouble Sought

DETROIT, March 15—(UP)—Circuit Judge Allen Campbell today granted an injunction ordering 6,000 sit-down strikers to quit nine Chrysler plants within 48 hours as Gov. Frank Murphy sought new machinery for settling industrial disputes.

While several hundred members of the United Automobile Workers of America paraded before Wayne county courthouse and lined its corridors the judge determined that sit-down strikers were in unlawful possession of the closed plants.

9 A. M. Wednesday Deadline

"The defendants must be out of the plants by 9 a. m. Wednesday," Judge Campbell ordered.

The injunction was the second order of its kind to be granted in recent industrial disputes. A similar mandate granted at Flint during the recent 44-day General Motors strike was not carried out by Genesee county officers. Attempts to execute the injunction resulted in a riot in which more than a score of strikers and officers were injured.

At Lansing, Gov. Murphy, successful mediator in the G. M. strike, called together the state attorney-general, judge advocate-general, prosecutors of three industrial counties, and other officers to discuss plans for permanent machinery to settle industrial disputes. As they met some 80,000 workers were idle due to strikes in Chrysler, Hudson and Reo Motor Car companies.

15 ONG TRUCKS TAKEN TO KENT BY GUARDSMEN

Equipment of Co. C. 112th quartermaster regiment was transferred to Kent, O., Monday morning by guardsmen under the direction of Major Don Spray of the adjutant general's office.

The equipment included 15 trucks, the station wagon and rifles and pistols.

The local unit was recently transferred from a quartermaster regiment to a headquarters battery. Trucks of the headquarters battery are larger than those stationed here. So far the new equipment has not been received.

MRS. STEVENSON, WILLIAMSPORT, IS DEAD AT 76

Mrs. Eliza Jane Stevenson, 76, widow of William Stevenson, died suddenly Sunday at 11 a. m. at her home in Williamsport. She had been ill since last November, but her death came unexpectedly.

A native of Fairfield county, Mrs. Stevenson was wed first to James Johnson, who died in 1923. She married William Stevenson Dec. 25, 1928.

Surviving are the husband; two sons, Harry Johnson, of Columbus, and J. Brance Johnson, of Williamsport, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, of North Berne, Fairfield county.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 2 a. m. at the residence with the Rev. G. C. Reed, assisted by the Rev. D. H. Householder, officiating. Burial will be in charge of C. E. Hill.

Mrs. Stevenson was a member of the Methodist church, Ladies' Aid, and Pythian Sisters.

STYLE REVUE ARRANGED FOR 3-DAY SCHOOL

A style revue will be conducted by the Crist department store in conjunction with The Daily Herald's cooking school, starting Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Cliftona theatre.

The revue, in which morning frocks, spring suits, coats and dresses will be shown, will begin at 1:30 p. m. each day. Mrs. Tom A. Renick will introduce the various styles and discuss each.

Three big days are promised for the school, sponsored by The Herald with Gas Company experts in charge.

The theatre doors will open at 1 p. m. to accommodate the many persons expected to attend.

TOM B. JACK, 62, VETERAN OF WAR WITH SPAIN, DIES

Word has been received of the death in a St. Louis hospital Saturday of Tom B. Jack, 62, a former resident of Kingston. He had been in the hospital for three weeks and was apparently on the road to recovery when death came.

A son of Arthur and Sarah Bitler Jack, he was born and reared in Kingston. When the Spanish-American war broke out he joined Company M, serving with many Circleville men. He had resided in St. Louis for many years, being employed as purchasing agent for the St. Louis Star.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Marian, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Ira Bookwalter, Springfield, O., and Mrs. Louis Leopard, Hagerstown, Md. His wife preceded him in death several years ago.

Funeral and burial took place in St. Louis Monday.

Mr. Jack was a cousin of Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Misses Ella and Mattie Crum, and Miss Emma Duncan.

OX, ANGERED BY NOISE, CHARGES IL DUCE, MISSES

BENGHAZI, Libya, March 15 — (UP) — Premier Benito Mussolini, between cheers from Italy's Moslem subjects, received congratulations today on his narrow escape from injury by a maddened ox which charged him, bellowing, as he reviewed a parade of farmers.

Mussolini was at Cyrene, on his tour of Libya's new 1,100 mile military road yesterday. He was standing on a tractor reviewing a colorful parade of peasants in ox carts. One ox, maddened by the cheers bolted from its cart, became entangled in its harness, and charged Mussolini.

The frightened animal had almost reached him, horns lowered, when powerful Air Marshal Italo Balbo, governor general of Libya, and others seized the horns.

Peasants ran up and after a struggle threw the ox to the ground and tied its legs.

Mussolini stood grim faced, watching, and at the end reproved the peasants for handling the ox carelessly.

PROBATE JUDGE REFUSES FANCY PAINT IN ROOMS

It may be nearing Easter when fancy colors are appropriate but Judge C. C. Young of probate court doesn't want them on the ceiling of his department.

NORRIS OFFERS COMPROMISE FOR COURT REVISION

WASHINGTON, March 15. — (UP)—Sen. George W. Norris, R., Nebr., today presented a compromise judiciary plan calling for both congressional action and a constitutional amendment.

The Norris plan, submitted during a momentary lull in the dispute over President Roosevelt's court reorganization program, comprised two parts intended to be acted upon as a unit.

The plan:

1. A congressional act requiring more than a two-thirds vote by the supreme court to invalidate acts of congress.

2. A constitutional amendment establishing nine-year terms for all federal justices including justices of the supreme court.

The Norris program was intended as a substitute for President Roosevelt's plan which calls for appointment of six new justices to the supreme court if justices over 70 years of age do not retire.

Norris has criticized Mr. Roosevelt's program but has indicated he will support it providing agreement is not reached on some substitute.

Submission of the Norris substitute came after he addressed the senate last week proposing that a drive for a constitutional amendment go hand in hand with legislative court action.

The equipment included 15 trucks, the station wagon and rifles and pistols.

The local unit was recently transferred from a quartermaster regiment to a headquarters battery. Trucks of the headquarters battery are larger than those stationed here. So far the new equipment has not been received.

MRS. STEVENSON, WILLIAMSPORT, IS DEAD AT 76

Mrs. Eliza Jane Stevenson, 76, widow of William Stevenson, died suddenly Sunday at 11 a. m. at her home in Williamsport. She had been ill since last November, but her death came unexpectedly.

A native of Fairfield county, Mrs. Stevenson was wed first to James Johnson, who died in 1923. She married William Stevenson Dec. 25, 1928.

Surviving are the husband; two sons, Harry Johnson, of Columbus, and J. Brance Johnson, of Williamsport, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, of North Berne, Fairfield county.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 2 a. m. at the residence with the Rev. G. C. Reed, assisted by the Rev. D. H. Householder, officiating. Burial will be in charge of C. E. Hill.

Mrs. Stevenson was a member of the Methodist church, Ladies' Aid, and Pythian Sisters.

TOM B. JACK, 62, VETERAN OF WAR WITH SPAIN, DIES

Word has been received of the death in a St. Louis hospital Saturday of Tom B. Jack, 62, a former resident of Kingston. He had been in the hospital for three weeks and was apparently on the road to recovery when death came.

A son of Arthur and Sarah Bitler Jack, he was born and reared in Kingston. When the Spanish-American war broke out he joined Company M, serving with many Circleville men. He had resided in St. Louis for many years, being employed as purchasing agent for the St. Louis Star.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Marian, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Ira Bookwalter, Springfield, O., and Mrs. Louis Leopard, Hagerstown, Md. His wife preceded him in death several years ago.

Funeral and burial took place in St. Louis Monday.

Mr. Jack was a cousin of Mrs. Leslie Pontius, Misses Ella and Mattie Crum, and Miss Emma Duncan.

OX, ANGERED BY NOISE, CHARGES IL DUCE, MISSES

BENGHAZI, Libya, March 15 — (UP) — Premier Benito Mussolini, between cheers from Italy's Moslem subjects, received congratulations today on his narrow escape from injury by a maddened ox which charged him, bellowing, as he reviewed a parade of farmers.

Mussolini was at Cyrene, on his tour of Libya's new 1,100 mile military road yesterday. He was standing on a tractor reviewing a colorful parade of peasants in ox carts. One ox, maddened by the cheers bolted from its cart, became entangled in its harness, and charged Mussolini.

The frightened animal had almost reached him, horns lowered, when powerful Air Marshal Italo Balbo, governor general of Libya, and others seized the horns.

Peasants ran up and after a struggle threw the ox to the ground and tied its legs.

Mussolini stood grim faced, watching, and at the end reproved the peasants for handling the ox carelessly.

PROBATE JUDGE REFUSES FANCY PAINT IN ROOMS

It may be nearing Easter when fancy colors are appropriate but Judge C. C. Young of probate court doesn't want them on the ceiling of his department.

The judge appeared before the commissioners Monday morning to complain about the "Easter egg purple" painters were using on the ceiling. He wanted a buff color.

The commissioners viewed the new shade, and it seemed to be generally agreed the color would be changed. Workmen said the color had been selected by the decorator.

LIMIT TAKEN FROM COUNTY SWEET CORN PRODUCTION

AAA RESTRICTS INDIAN ACREAGE IN REVISED PLAN

Pickaway Committee Men to Meet Tuesday to Talk Program for Year

81,424 ACRES ALLOWED

$79,952.63 Received by 823 for 1936 Participation

Pickaway county's revised limit on Indian corn under the 1937 agricultural program is 81,424 acres. There will be no restriction on commercial sweet corn and popcorn.

The revised base was announced Monday by Paul Matthaes, county compliance agent, following receipt of a telegram from Elmer F. Kruse, Columbus, chairman of the Ohio Agriculture Conservation committee.

The original base established for the county was 86,638 acres of both Indian corn and sweet corn. Members of the county conservation committee believed the base too low, as corn is one of the major crops. They held conferences with district and regional officials urging an adjustment.

Local committeemen believe a normal crop of sweet corn for the county is approximately 7,000 acres. Under the first base the limit would have been about 5,200 acres.

Indian Corn Less

"Under the new base the Indian corn acreage will be somewhat less than in 1936," Mr. Matthaes said, "but the reduction will not be nearly so large as under the original quota. We hope to have the limits for individual farms established within the next week or ten days."

Township committeemen under the conservation program will meet in the Farm Bureau offices Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. for further instructions on administration of the program.

Statistics on the 1937 program are incomplete, Mr. Matthaes said, as more applications are being received daily.

$79,952.63 Received

Under the 1936 program, 1,275 applications have been submitted and approximately 45 are still to be sent in for payment. To date payments have been made on 823 applications for a total of $79,952.63. The total payments are expected to amount to about $135,000.

MASSIE OF NAVY WEDS SEATTLE GIRL SECRETLY

CHEWELAH, Wash., March 15—(UP)—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. Navy, former husband of Mrs. Thalia Fortesque Massie, the central figure in the sensational Honolulu attack case seven years ago, was married in Seattle a week ago, it was reported here today.

The marriage was announced by Miss Marie Storm, sister of the bride, Florence Storm. She said the ceremony was performed secretly to avoid publicity.

The Massie case in Honolulu established international precedent when Massie and a seaman, convicted of murder, were given full pardons within a few minutes after their conviction.

Their trail followed a reported attack on Mrs. Massie in which five Filipinos were involved. All were tried and acquitted. One of the Filipinos was slain subsequently and Massie and the seamen were indicted on charges of murder.

Mrs. Thalia Massie divorced Lieut. Massie in Reno, Nev. on Feb. 24, 1934. She charged mental cruelty.

Production of a movie which Marlene Dietrich and Herbert Marshall were scheduled to begin this week has been delayed for a week in order to give them a chance to appear in the Radio Theatre production of "Desire."

The producer of the new picture, "The Angel," to be made for Paramount, is Ernest Lubitsch. He will be interviewed between the acts of Radio Theatre's "Desire". Cecil B. DeMille brings him to the microphone during the broadcast over the Columbia network at 9 p. m.

Lubitsch was also the producer of "Desire" when Marlene Dietrich starred in this play on the screen.

FONDA WITH VALLEE

Henry Fonda, from Hollywood, joins Walter O'Keefe, the hill-billy from Broadway, and Edgar Bergen, the ventriloquist, on Rudy Vallee's Hour next Thursday.

Fonda is one of the few actors who came to prominence on Broadway and in Hollywood in recent years who haven't yet been heard on the Valle Hour. He made his stage reputation in "The Farmer Takes a Wife," went on to Hollywood in the picture of the same name. He stars in a dramatic sketch on the air.

Walter O'Keefe was one of the many entertainers introduced to radio by Rudy Vallee and it was in this program that the famous "Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze" had its beginning. His comedy in this broadcast over the NBC red network at 8 p. m. sponsored by Royal Gelatin, is based on things currently happening here and there with pertinent comment on the rest of the hour's entertainment.

NEW STAMPS ARRIVE

Stamp collectors were visiting the postoffice Monday to obtain new 3-cent Army and Navy Commemorative stamps, and 20-cent and 50-cent trans-Pacific air mail stamps. The stamps were received Monday.

MONDAY IS LAST DAY TO FIGURE TAX ON INCOME

WASHINGTON, March 15—(UP)—Four million Americans today performed some quick addition, subtraction, multiplication and division and then hurried to the postoffice to get their 1936 income tax in the mail before the deadline at midnight.

The internal revenue bureau was deluged with late rush of taxpayers. Telegraphic reports indicated that field offices were having similar experiences.

By the time all returns are tabulated, the bureau believed, 6,000,000 individuals and corporations will have provided the national treasury with an additional $840,000,000. It was estimated that a third of the 6,000,000 returns had been filed by Saturday night.

Administration tax experts, scanning the trend of returns over the last few weeks, felt certain that the March collections would yield the anticipated $840,000,000, which would be nearly double the figure for the corresponding 1936 period and almost $150,000,000 above the "boom" income tax production of March 1929.

A Thrilling New Experience In Cookery

Miss Streich is the special representative in charge of demonstrations for the Gasco Food Institute. She is a home economics graduate, specially trained for her work. You'll find her demonstrations instructive and her presentations most interesting.

Cliftona Theater Now Featuring THE LAST OF MRS CHEYNEY

The 1937 Gasco Food Institute Opening Wednesday 2:00 P. M. At The CLIFTONA THEATRE

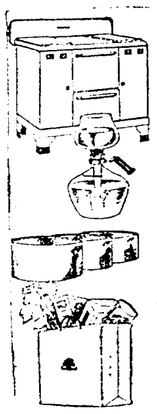
Food fashions for 1937 go on parade before Circleville homemakers Wednesday in an entirely different modern cooking clinic. The event is sponsored by The Circleville Herald and presents a three-day program at the Cliftona Theater beginning Wednesday afternoon. Every session is packed full of thrilling surprises in a presentation that is as instructive as it is unique.

The Food Institute will be in charge of Miss Kathryn Streich, home economics authority, ably assisted by Miss Maxine Robertson, home service representative of The Gas Company. These young ladies will dramatize cookery during the programs in a manner highly entertaining as well as informative.

All demonstrations will be conducted in the beautiful model kitchen shown above. Designed by the Home Service Department of The Gas Company in cooperation with a nationally known architect, it is constructed in units which may be assembled on any stage.

Attend the 1937 Gasco Food Institute. After seeing one performance, you'll be certain to see all three.

FREE Prizes Every Day



Valuable merchandise prizes will be awarded at each session of the Food Institute. These include Silex Coffee Makers, Wear - Ever Aluminum ware set, cutlery set, mixing bowls, 24 large shopping bags of groceries, and the grand prize awarded on the final day—a new-mode TAP-PAN Divided-Top Gas Range.

Newest Recipes Demonstrated

The three-day program of the 1937 Gasco Food Institute brings the newest in food preparations to its audiences. "Feature Day," the initial program, emphasizes the many features of the modern gas range with delicious main meal servings. "The Talk of the Town," on the second day, is a dramatized program built around novel servings for entertaining. "Health Day" deals with simmer cooking, the newest method of health cookery.

"Domestic Engineering"
By Dr. Roy A. Burkhart

As an outstanding event of the program, Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, prominent psychologist of Columbus, will address the Institute on the final day. He will speak on home and family problems, a subject on which he has made wide study. He handles his subject in a human, informal manner which is very appealing.

Handy Recipe File FREE

At each session of the Food Institute, recipe sheets containing the servings prepared during the demonstration will be distributed. On the final day, a beautiful, two-color Homemaker's Recipe File, for filing these and other cooking information, will be presented free to each person attending.

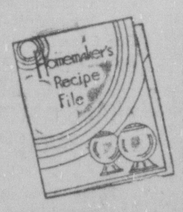
The three-day program of the 1937 Gasco Food Institute brings the newest in food preparations to its audiences. "Feature Day," the initial program, emphasizes the many features of the modern gas range with delicious main meal servings. "The Talk of the Town," on the second day, is a dramatized program built around novel servings for entertaining. "Health Day" deals with simmer cooking, the newest method of health cookery.

"Domestic Engineering"
By Dr. Roy A. Burkhart

As an outstanding event of the program, Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, prominent psychologist of Columbus, will address the Institute on the final day. He will speak on home and family problems, a subject on which he has made wide study. He handles his subject in a human, informal manner which is very appealing.

Handy Recipe File FREE



At each session of the Food Institute, recipe sheets containing the servings prepared during the demonstration will be distributed. On the final day, a beautiful, two-color Homemaker's Recipe File, for filing these and other cooking information, will be presented free to each person attending.

SUPREME COURT STARTS RECESS OF TWO WEEKS

Rulings on Four Principal Questions Awaited by Interested Nation

Deal legislation or measures linked directly with the Roosevelt program. They were:

1. The Wagner Labor Relations act, hailed as labor's Magna Charta, which assures workers the right to bargain collectively.

Labor Act Pending

2. The Railway act which extends to that industry rights the Wagner act provides generally.

3. The New York Unemployment Insurance law, part of the New Deal's social security program.

4. The Washington minimum wage law for women.

Oldest of the cases remaining undecided was that involving the Washington minimum law for women. Although it has been on the statute books more than a generation, no attempt has generally been made to enforce the law because of the supreme court's repeated rulings that such legislation is unconstitutional.

The present suit grew out of the attempt of a chambermaid to collect alleged underpayments from her employer under the law. The state supreme court upheld the statute. Because of the delay in the U. S. supreme court's decision many expected that the law would be approved.

Unfair Practice Studied

In addition to the Wagner act cases already argued five weeks ago, the court also was due to act on the petition of several manufacturers attacking the law. They are appealing from District of Columbia court of appeals rulings which held they could not sue the National Labor Relations board for an injunction to prevent hearings into allegations of unfair labor practices.

The Unemployment Insurance law case involves the New York state law. The court upheld the law by a four to four vote but a petition for rehearing has been filed. In the meantime an appeal involving the Alabama law has been taken under the court's jurisdiction and the fate of this law will probably be decided in the New York case ruling.

The five Wagner act cases involve application of the law to a bus company, a newspaper wire service and steel, automobile trailer and clothing manufacturers.

NOT NEUTRALITY

DIFFERENCE between the Pittman bill, which has passed the senate, 63 to 6, and the McReynolds bill in the House is considerably more than that between tweedledum and tweedledee. But at this stage that difference is probably pretty academic, as senate conferees would be instructed to hold out for a peace-at-any-price policy, rather than give the president a fairly wide discretion.

Both measures embargo the sale of lethal weapons to any belligerent, however good a customer, however not at fault and however friendly to the United States. The senate bill would make it automatically unlawful for American citizens to travel on belligerents' ships, whereas in the house bill discretion is left with the president to forbid such travel. Similarly, the senate bill would forbid the shipping to belligerents in American bottoms of certain commodities that the president must specify. The house bill allows much more latitude to the executive. Both bills employ the cash-and-carry principle that goods permitted to be taken from our ports for the use of belligerents shall have been paid for and that Americans have no financial interest in them. By both, loans to belligerents are forbidden.

Neither bill gives the slightest consideration to the merits of a foreign war. The aggressor is placed on the same footing as the nation assailed. Nor is consideration given to the need for uninterrupted flow of food and raw materials to regular customers who for years have depended on them.

There is a sharp limitation to the possibilities of this cash-and-carry principle. No European belligerent, for example, unless Germany with a rehabilitated navy, could hope to buy goods here if Britain were her enemy, and even then Germany might be frustrated by inability to pay cash. In an Asiatic war the same preferential position would be occupied by Japan.

This, of course, is not the policy of true neutrality, but what Bernard M. Baruch calls "scuttle and run," foregoing the freedom of the seas. It is calculated, beyond doubt, to provoke postwar reprisals. In the event that we, who produce no rubber, no tin, no coffee, no nickel, not enough sugar, went to war, invoking this policy against us would put in serious economic position. These are things to fight for, and so, from the standpoint of other nations are our cotton, steel and wheat.

It is time to realize that in this small world a trading nation like the United States cannot insulate itself. We want no war, but whether we can make good on that fine resolve depends upon events which no Congressional enactment can anticipate—that is, unless we intend to Chinafy ourselves.

WHISKEY CZAR MAY EMBARRASS F.D.

WASHINGTON—Members of the Roosevelt family have a never-failing capacity for embarrassing their relative in the White House.

Son Elliott Roosevelt was none too careful in tying up with airplane companies seeking favors from his father. Son-in-law John Boettiger is working for one of Roosevelt's most vigorous newspaper critics, Mr. Hearst. Son Franklin is engaged to a scion of the duPonts, a dynasty which has spent thousands to defeat his father.

And now Uncle Forbes Morgan has become czar of the whiskey distillers—at $75,000 per.

How embarrassing this can be for the President was indicated the other day when the Interior Department got ready to announce the sale of the first government-made rum in history. The rum is manufactured in the Virgin Islands under PWA auspices in an effort to revive the historic industry of the islands.

Impending arrival of the first shipment was considered a most important event, and the Interior Department prepared announcements about it.

Suddenly came flat orders from the White House that there must be no announcement, no promotion of the rum. Reason was the possibility of offending Dry sentiment in the United States.

But—unfortunately—a lot of people will never believe that whiskey czar Forbes Morgan, Mrs. Roosevelt's uncle, did not have a finger in the pie. Naturally, the whiskey distillers don't want competition from government-made and government-advertised rum.

TUGWELL'S SYRUP

Rexford Guy Tugwell has received his first jolt in the molasses business. The other day he came down to breakfast in his New York home, and began to enjoy a plate of pancakes. As he picked up the pitcher of syrup, he paused.

"Florence," he said to Mrs. Tugwell, "what kind of syrup is this?"

"I believe it's called 'Br'er Rabbit'," replied Mrs. Tugwell.

"But that's not our brand," he said. "I'm in the business now, and we should use our brand."

"I'm sorry, dear," replied Mrs. Tugwell, "but I've never heard of it."

ANTI-ROOSEVELT

Behind the selection of J. Butler (Butsy) Wright as new Ambassador to Cuba is the successful effort of the career boys to sell Roosevelt on the idea of putting their service in the same category as the Army and Navy. They want promotions only from their own ranks.

Funny thing is that although Roosevelt has done more for the Army and Navy than any other President in two decades, their officers have been knocking him harder than any other government branch.

Officers who are frank estimate that about 80 percent of the Army commissioned personnel voted against Roosevelt and about 70 percent of the Navy, even though the latter outfit is Roosevelt's pet.

One of the distinguished characteristics of a dictator is his readiness to shed somebody else's blood for the Fatherland.

DIET AND HEALTH

Best Manner of Meeting Childhood Minor Ills

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BEGINNING mothers and fathers are to be pitied because they suffer so much unnecessary agony. The baby seems to them an infinitesimally small, delicate, highly destructible object, and every once in a while it does something which appears to one with its interests at heart as if it had deliberately attempted to suspend the process of life.

Dr. Clendening

One of these things is breath-holding. It looks, indeed, terrifying but, as a matter of fact, it never did any harm. No human being on earth can voluntarily hold his breath to the point of suffocation, because even if it goes so far that he loses consciousness, as soon as this occurs, the automatic processes of life take over and start the regular function of respiration.

The children who are subject to breath-holding spells usually are nervous and easily affected by sudden shock or fright, or by a fall or hurt. These children rapidly learn to prolong the agony when they find that it brings them extra favors or attention. They quickly learn to hold their breath at will and the condition gradually increases, especially if they find that they can get their own way by doing so. If the spells are not from habit, dashing cold water in the face helps the child regain its breath. When the spells are from habit, the best treatment is to leave the room and let the child enjoy its special performance without an audience. If this is done, the little one will soon cease putting on a show.

Crying Another Problem

Similar to breath-holding is crying. My friend, Dr. M. C. Overton, of Lubbock, Tex., in an excellent little book for mothers called, "Your Baby and Child", says: "The rather usual remark that I make in my office is that a crying baby hurts the mother worse than it hurts the baby. Particularly is this true of a mother with her first child, because the young mother is greatly disturbed if her baby cries very much."

The commonest cause of excessive crying in the first few months of a baby's life is hunger. Sometimes an overfed baby will cry from distress and gas. Crying is the only voice a little baby has, and it is good for it to develop normal use of its voice. Good lung expansion follows crying and it exercises the muscles. Dr. Overton also says that it is especially desirable that an infant be awakened from 15 to 30 minutes before each feeding and cry. It develops a good appetite for its coming meal. Of course, we assume that nobody has coupled a safety pin into the baby's skin. Short of these things, the best thing to do is to let the baby cry it out.

REFUGE

Twilight, a timid fawn, went glimmering by.
And Night, the dark-blue hunter, followed fast,
Ceaseless pursuit and flight were in the sky,
But the long chase had ceased for us at last.

We watched together while the driven fawn
Hid in the golden thicket of the day.
We, from whose hearts pursuit and flight were gone,
Knew on the hunter's breast her refuge lay.

Up to find snow covering the ground and more falling, an unusual sight for this alleged Winter. But then this is March and anything may be expected. Dr. Shane, at the post, remarked that this is the only month of the season that to all appearances intends living up to its reputation.

In the mail a letter addressed to the Antiquated Reporter and mailed in the ville at 9 p. m. March 13. Would appreciate meeting the anonymous writer for friendly discussion. Otherwise, little of importance at the post, so returned to the plant for a general discussion of affairs with the boys of the mechanical department.

Learned with pleasure that the Rev. G. J. Troutman is recovering rapidly at St. Petersburg, Fla., and chatted with Mack Parrett, who was out bright and early. There goes Link Mader on his way to church. It was with Link that the scrivener first attended divine services in the ville. Noted a horse-drawn plow clearing snow from the sidewalks, and about time, too, for it was mightily inconvenient for those of us who do not wear spats and dislike rubbers.

* * *

See by the paper that the city and county have placed a quarantine on dogs. Somewhat of a hardship on pups and their masters, but a necessary precaution. Possibly as terrible a sight as this world of ours affords is provided by victims of mad dogs. I like dogs as well as the next man, although owning none since a kid when two very dear pets, one after the other, were poisoned. The pain of the losses was so great that did swear not to tempt fate again.

* * *

Hailed Bill Radcliff, the mayor of Williamsport, who has recovered from the plague.

Read in Esquire of a Missouri hillbilly who declared that Roosevelt is greater than Jesus Christ because Christ said, "follow me and ye shall not want," while Roosevelt announces, "sit down, boys, and I'll bring it to you."

Wonder whether a delinquent tax list will be printed in the county or whether the officials will just attempt to increase land assessments to make up for the loss of money that would be paid in on announcement of publication intent? Rather tough on those who do scrimp in order to pay their more or less just debt to government.

* * *

Out for a trudge through the snow and then home for a quiet afternoon and evening. Slick streets certainly slow up general traffic, but did see two or three drivers with more horsepower than brains. Praise be, none of them was driving a car with local license.

CHAPTER 46

"IS IT REALLY you, Joel, or are you Santa Claus?" Janet said to her husband when she saw him standing on the threshold of her small room. His great height made the room seem smaller.

He stood there looking at her without speaking for a moment. There was something in his face that told her he had not expected to see her again. There were other things she saw in his face before he grinned at her in the half shy way that she had always loved. The lines beside his mouth were deeper. His eyes looked tired and she saw that there was a trace of gray at his temples.

He grinned and came over to her bedside. He dropped his packages and wordlessly gathered her in his arms. She felt pitifully small to him. He brushed the hair back from her forehead and kissed her.

"I've been here many times before," he said.

"Of course you have. Martha told me that she had been keeping you from me."

"The doctor said you weren't to see anyone." Joel didn't add that the doctor had said she had had a nervous shock and that he didn't want her to see even her husband.

Another time Janet might have protested that her husband wasn't "anyone" but she didn't say it now. She had been herself such a short time she hadn't yet made any effort to take hold.

Joel was staring at her hungrily.

"Do I really look so bad?" she asked.

"You look like a little girl who is getting over a party that was too strenuous," he answered. He was afraid to say more. Martha had tried in her tactful way to tell him that Janet had carried more than she was capable of and that he was not to talk seriously to her.

"But look here!" He picked up his packages and dropped them in her lap. "I'm a Greek bringing presents."

"For me? Oh, darling, help me to open them."

There were three new novels, an angora jacket that looked like a baby's sweater, a box of white violets and a basket of Malaga grapes that looked too good to eat.

"Oh, Joel, it's like Christmas!" She wished that she could say something to take the stricken look off Joel's face. He had done nothing and it hurt her to see him staring at her unhappily.

"Don't look so sad," she said. "I'm really quite all right now. I'll be up and about very soon. Are they taking care of you, darling? Are you eating vegetables and fruit juice?"

Suddenly Joel slipped to his knees and buried his face in her bosom. "Jan, I've been a brute. When you're well, everything is going to be different. I've been through hell since that night when Martha telephoned me."

She stroked his hair tenderly.

"Oh, my sweet, I'm sorry it happened. I didn't know what I was doing when I ran up here. I wouldn't have caused you any worry for anything in the world. But, don't you see, it's all right now?"

"No, it isn't," he said with his cheek laid against hers. "It will never be all right until I make up to you for what I've done. You've got to get well, Jan. I need you! If anything happened to you, I don't know what would become of me. Before I knew you I didn't amount to anything. I guess I'm not much good now as a man but whatever I am, I owe to you."

"If it comes to owing—and it never will between us—Mr. Paynter, I'm the girl who will be forever in debt to the gods. All I want is to be the sweetheart you wanted me to be the day that we made our promises to each other in the white house that you can see from the north window. Remember?"

"I remember everything," he said and blew his nose hard. Janet pretended not to see his eyes.

"Now tell me about the apartment and the play. Is everything running smoothly?"

Joel said that everything was fine. In fact, much better than when she was there and when she pretended to look disappointed, he hastened to tell her that it was not so but that she wasn't to think of it.

"You see you aren't coming back for a few weeks."

"But I am! Just as soon as I am able to be up on my foolish legs, I've got to get back!"

"Oh, no you do not, Janet! Martha and I have cooked up a neat little plan. You're going to stay out here until real warm weather comes. You're going to have rest and sunshine and Martha's good care. Jove, that woman is marvelous!"

"Who's marvelous?" Martha asked from the doorway.

"Didn't you ever hear that eavesdroppers never hear good of themselves?" Janet asked blithely in a tone that took the impertinence out of her words.

"If you mean I'm marvelous, I call that extra good," Martha answered complacently. "But maybe you'll change your mind because I've come to ask Joel to come down to supper and let you get a nap. Come along, young man. You're Janet's first guest and you're only allowed a few minutes."

"Maybe you'd better go, darling. Martha's a strong minded woman. But come back and say good night to me."

"Even Martha couldn't stop me from doing that. Before I go, you'd better hear the news that I'm to have the spare room three nights a week."

When he had gone, Janet closed her eyes. Her lips moved gently. "Oh Lord," she said, "I thank You. I thank You for sending me this illness and making me see the wrong I was doing. I thank You for giving Joel back to me. Please give me the strength and vision to cherish wisely this precious gift from You."

When Joel came back to kiss her goodby, he held her in his arms with a strong tenderness and said, "Janet, I want to ask you a question. Do you love me?"

"I do love you, Joel."

"Are you in love with me?"

"Terribly, my darling. I always have been."

"Forgive me, Janet, I have doubted for a long time that you were. My heart has been sore with jealousy and the knowledge of my own inferiority."

She pressed him closer to her and could not find the words to tell him what she was feeling or the things that his words made her see. She knew then, for the first time, that her friendship with Russell Bede, her social independence, had been in a large measure the cause of the widening distance between them and she resolved that from that day hence she would never give him cause to be unhappy.

Her strength came back to her quickly after that visit. It was more than Martha's loving care that mended her. Her heart was well again. She had Joel back again.

April slipped sweetly into May and the roses long absent from her cheeks blossomed with their roundness. Her step was firm and she felt like a new person. She began to look forward to returning to her apartment in town albeit she was reluctant to end the happy routine of her days in Chester.

She had never been so happy as she was then. Joel stayed in town on Tuesday and Saturday nights. The other nights he hurried out to the country after the theater and stayed with Janet until late the next afternoon. They went walking and one day they had a fishing trip. Another day they had a picnic.

"Happy?" Joel asked and watched with delight the joy that Janet showed when she found a bird's nest.

"Too happy," she said. "But I will always have this happiness to remember. We've got to start thinking of the future, Joel. Do you think we'll go back to California in the autumn?"

Joel didn't answer her. He averted his face and made some comment about weeding the garden before supper time.

(To Be Continued)

She felt pitifully small to him.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

James Stewart is not handsome. His hair won't stay combed. Yet in the single year that he's been in Hollywood he has played important dramatic roles in "Rose Marie," "Wife Versus Secretary" and "Small Town Girl"; enacted the romantic lead in "Speed", and currently featured on the Circle screen along with such celebrities as Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Lionel Barrymore, Franchot Tone and Melvyn Douglas in "The Gorgeous Hussy".

AT THE GRAND

During the filming of Universal's "Four Days Wonder," the film at the Grand theatre, the director had trouble keeping 13 year old Jeanne Dant's dog off the set, where he interrupted scenes to claim attention from his owner. Finally the animal was taken out quietly before Miss Dante noticed the procedure. "Where's my dog," she asked director Sidney Salkow, who replied, "A couple of large California fleas came in and took him away. They said they had been saving up for a nice big dog for a long time."

AT THE CLIFTONA

M-G-M's multi-star policy prevails in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney", which opened Sunday's run at the Cliftona with William Powell, Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery playing the leading roles. The important supporting cast includes Frank Morgan, Nigel Bruce, Benita Hume, Aileen Pringle, Jessie Ralph, Leonard Carey, Ralph Forbes, Melville Cooper, Lumsden Hare and Sara Haden.

The story introduces Miss Crawford as an American shop girl whose passion for society leads her to impersonate herself as an heiress with the result that she "crashes" the most exclusive circles of London and is besieged by marriage offers. The story rises to a dramatic climax when "Mrs. Cheyney" is revealed to be in league with a thief. How she extricates herself from the complications makes for one of the most amusing comedy romances of the season.

Best Manner of Meeting Childhood Minor Ills

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BEGINNING mothers and fathers are to be pitied because they suffer so much unnecessary agony. The baby seems to them an infinitesimally small, delicate, highly destructible object, and every once in a while it does something which appears to one with its interests at heart as if it had deliberately attempted to suspend the process of life.

Dr. Clendening

One of these things is breath-holding. It looks, indeed, terrifying but, as a matter of fact, it never did any harm. No human being on earth can voluntarily hold his breath to the point of suffocation, because even if it goes so far that he loses consciousness, as soon as this occurs, the automatic processes of life take over and start the regular function of respiration.

The children who are subject to breath-holding spells usually are nervous and easily affected by sudden shock or fright, or by a fall or hurt. These children rapidly learn to prolong the agony when they find that it brings them extra favors or attention. They quickly learn to hold their breath at will and the condition gradually increases, especially if they find that they can get their own way by doing so. If the spells are not from habit, dashing cold water in the face helps the child regain its breath. When the spells are from habit, the best treatment is to leave the room and let the child enjoy its special performance without an audience. If this is done, the little one will soon cease putting on a show.

Crying Another Problem

Similar to breath-holding is crying. My friend, Dr. M. C. Overton, of Lubbock, Tex., in an excellent little book for mothers called, "Your Baby and Child", says: "The rather usual remark that I make in my office is that a crying baby hurts the mother worse than it hurts the baby. Particularly is this true of a mother with her first child, because the young mother is greatly disturbed if her baby cries very much."

The commonest cause of excessive crying in the first few months of a baby's life is hunger. Sometimes an overfed baby will cry from distress and gas. Crying is the only voice a little baby has, and it is good for it to develop normal use of its voice. Good lung expansion follows crying and it exercises the muscles. Dr. Overton also says that it is especially desirable that an infant be awakened from 15 to 30 minutes before each feeding and cry. It develops a good appetite for its coming meal. Of course, we assume that nobody has coupled a safety pin into the baby's skin. Short of these things, the best thing to do is to let the baby cry it out.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Elliott Voll, W. Main street tailor, was re-elected as secretary of the Circleville Athletic club for his 18th consecutive year.

"Dempsey" beautiful St. Bernard dog owned by R. R. Bales, E. Main street, died of senility. A brother of the dog is owned by Harold Lloyd, screen star.

Henry Jackson, of near Logan Elm, reported to the sheriff's department about 25 mixed chickens were stolen from his henhouse.

10 YEARS AGO

C. D. Closson, well known man, died at his home on N. Pickaway street of complications resulting from influenza.

C. W. Clark, manager of the local Western Union office, left for a short vacation at his home in Wellston.

Charles B. Stofer, city, attended the spring ceremonial of the Dramatic order, Knights of Khorassan, held in Columbus.

25 YEARS AGO

James M. Dunlap, owner of several farms in this county and a residence on Franklin street, has established a permanent home at Daytona Beach, Fla.

A. C. Cook and F. J. Loudner went to Steubenville where they expect to close a deal for purchase of the Minerva theater in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Lorbach announced the engagement of their daughter, Irma, to Clyde S. Groner of Leetonia. The marriage will be event of early spring.

Poems That Live

SONG
From 'Pippa Passes"

The year's at the spring,
The day's at the morn;
Morning'es at seven;
The hill-side dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing;
The snail's on the thorn;
God's in His Heaven—
All's right with the world
—Robert Browning.

REFUGE

Twilight, a timid fawn, went glimmering by,
And Night, the dark-blue hunter, followed fast,
Ceaseless pursuit and flight were in the sky,
But the long chase had ceased for us at last.

We watched together while the driven fawn
Hid in the golden thicket of the day.
We, from whose hearts pursuit and flight were gone,
Knew on the hunter's breast her refuge lay.
—A. E. (George William Russell).

"AH, BE NOT FALSE"

Ah, be not false, sweet Splendor!
Be true, be good;
Be wise as thou art tender;
Be all that Beauty should.

Not lightly by thy citadel subdued;
Not ignobly, not untimely,
Take praise in solemn mood;
Take love sublimely.
—Richard Watson Gilder

RARE FORESIGHT

Bridget had just started on her duties as housemaid, and on the very first day she came up to her new employer.

"Please, mum," she said, "would yez moind givin' me a recommendation?"

"A recommendation, Bridget!" exclaimed the mistress, with a look of alarm. "Why, you have only just come!"

"Yes mum," admitted Bridget, "but you might not be wantin' to give me one when Oi'm lavin', mum."

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find snow covering the ground and more falling, an unusual sight for this alleged Winter. But then this is March and anything may be expected. Dr. Shane, at the post, remarked that this is the only month of the season that to all appearances intends living up to its reputation.

* * *

In the mail a letter addressed to the Antiquated Reporter and mailed in the ville at 9 p. m. March 13. Would appreciate meeting the anonymous writer for friendly discussion. Otherwise, little of importance at the post, so returned to the plant for a general discussion of affairs with the boys of the mechanical department.

* * *

Learned with pleasure that the Rev. G. J. Troutman is recovering rapidly at St. Petersburg, Fla., and chatted with Mack Parrett, who was out bright and early. There goes Link Mader on his way to church. It was with Link that the scrivener first attended divine services in the ville. Noted a horse-drawn plow clearing snow from the sidewalks, and about time, too, for it was mightily inconvenient for those of us who do not wear spats and dislike rubbers.

* * *

See by the paper that the city and county have placed a quarantine on dogs. Somewhat of a hardship on pups and their masters, but a necessary precaution. Possibly as terrible a sight as this world of ours affords is provided by victims of mad dogs. I like dogs as well as the next man, although owning none since a kid when two very dear pets, one after the other, were poisoned. The pain of the losses was so great that did swear not to tempt fate again.

* * *

Hailed Bill Radcliff, the mayor of Williamsport, who has recovered from the plague. Read in Esquire of a Missouri hillbilly who declared that Roosevelt is greater than Jesus Christ because Christ said, "follow me and ye shall not want," while Roosevelt announces, "sit down, boys, and I'll bring it to you."

* * *

Wonder whether a delinquent tax list will be printed in the county or whether the officials will just attempt to increase land assessments to make up for the loss of money that would be paid in on announcement of publication intent? Rather tough on those who do scrimp in order to pay their more or less just debt to government.

* * *

Out for a trudge through the snow and then home for a quiet afternoon and evening. Slick streets certainly slow up general traffic, but did see two or three drivers with more horsepower than brains. Praise be, none of them was driving a car with local license.

CHAPTER 46

"IS IT REALLY you, Joel, or are you Santa Claus?" Janet said to her husband when she saw him standing on the threshold of her small room. His great height made the room seem smaller.

He stood there looking at her without speaking for a moment. There was something in his face that told her he had not expected to see her again. There were other things she saw in his face before he grinned at her in the half shy way that she had always loved. The lines beside his mouth were deeper. His eyes looked tired and she saw that there was a trace of gray at his temples.

He grinned and came over to her bedside. He dropped his packages and wordlessly gathered her in his arms. She felt pitifully small to him. He brushed the hair back from her forehead and kissed her.

"I've been here many times before," he said.

"Of course you have. Martha told me that she had been keeping you from me."

"The doctor said you weren't to see anyone." Joel didn't add that the doctor had said she had had a nervous shock and that he didn't want her to see even her husband.

Another time Janet might have protested that her husband wasn't "anyone" but she didn't say it now. She had been herself such a short time she hadn't yet made any effort to take hold.

Joel was staring at her hungrily.

"Do I really look so bad?" she asked.

"You look like a little girl who is getting over a party that was too strenuous," he answered. He was afraid to say more. Martha had tried in her tactful way to tell him that Janet had carried more than she was capable of and that he was not to talk seriously to her.

"But look here!" He picked up his packages and dropped them in her lap. "I'm a Greek bringing presents."

"For me? Oh, darling, help me to open them."

There were three new novels, an angora jacket that looked like a baby's sweater, a box of white violets and a basket of Malaga grapes that looked too good to eat.

"Oh, Joel, it's like Christmas!" She wished that she could say something to take the stricken look off Joel's face. He had done nothing and it hurt her to see him staring at her unhappily.

"Don't look so sad," she said. "I'm really quite all right now. I'll be up and about very soon. Are they taking care of you, darling? Are you eating vegetables and fruit juice?"

Suddenly Joel slipped to his knees and buried his face in her bosom. "Jan, I've been a brute. When you're well, everything is going to be different. I've been through hell since that night when Martha telephoned me."

She stroked his hair tenderly.

"Oh, my sweet, I'm sorry it happened. I didn't know what I was doing when I ran up here. I wouldn't have caused you any worry for anything in the world. But, don't you see, it's all right now?"

"No, it isn't," he said with his cheek laid against hers. "It will never be all right until I make up to you for what I've done. You've got to get well, Jan. I need you! If anything happened to you, I don't know what would become of me. Before I knew you I didn't amount to anything. I guess I'm not much good now as a man but whatever I am, I owe to you."

"If it comes to owing—and it never will between us—Mr. Paynter, I'm the girl who will be forever in debt to the gods. All I want is to be the sweetheart you wanted me to be the day that we made our promises to each other in the white house that you can see from the north window. Remember?"

"I remember everything," he said and blew his nose hard. Janet pretended not to see his eyes.

"Now tell me about the apartment and the play. Is everything running smoothly?"

Joel said that everything was fine. In fact, much better than when she was there and when she pretended to look disappointed, he hastened to tell her that it was not so but that she wasn't to think of it.

"You see you aren't coming back for a few weeks."

"But I am! Just as soon as I am able to be up on my foolish legs, I've got to get back!"

"Oh, no you do not, Janet! Martha and I have cooked up a neat little plan. You're going to stay out here until real warm weather comes. You're going to have rest and sunshine and Martha's good care. Jove, that woman is marvelous!"

"Who's marvelous?" Martha asked from the doorway.

"Didn't you ever hear that eavesdroppers never hear good of themselves?" Janet asked blithely in a tone that took the impertinence out of her words.

"If you mean I'm marvelous, I call that extra good," Martha answered complacently. "But maybe you'll change your mind because I've come to ask Joel to come down to supper and let you get a nap. Come along, young man. You're Janet's first guest and you're only allowed a few minutes."

"Maybe you'd better go, darling. Martha's a strong minded woman. But come back and say good night to me."

"Even Martha couldn't stop me from doing that. Before I go, you'd better hear the news that I'm to have the spare room three nights a week."

When he had gone, Janet closed her eyes. Her lips moved gently. "Oh Lord," she said, "I thank You. I thank You for sending me this illness and making me see the wrong I was doing. I thank You for giving Joel back to me. Please give me the strength and vision to cherish wisely this precious gift from You."

When Joel came back to kiss her goodby, he held her in his arms with a strong tenderness and said, "Janet, I want to ask you a question. Do you love me?"

"I do love you, Joel."

"Are you in love with me?"

"Terribly, my darling. I always have been."

"Forgive me, Janet, I have doubted for a long time that you were. My heart has been sore with jealousy and the knowledge of my own inferiority."

She pressed him closer to her and could not find the words to tell him what she was feeling or the things that his words made her see. She knew then, for the first time, that her friendship with Russell Bede, her social independence, had been in a large measure the cause of the widening distance between them and she resolved that from that day hence she would never give him cause to be unhappy.

Her strength came back to her quickly after that visit. It was more than Martha's loving care that mended her. Her heart was well again. She had Joel back again.

April slipped sweetly into May and the roses long absent from her cheeks blossomed with their roundness. Her step was firm and she felt like a new person. She began to look forward to returning to her apartment in town albeit she was reluctant to end the happy routine of her days in Chester.

She had never been so happy as she was then. Joel stayed in town on Tuesday and Saturday nights. The other nights he hurried out to the country after the theater and stayed with Janet until late the next afternoon. They went walking and one day they had a fishing trip. Another day they had a picnic.

"Happy?" Joel asked and watched with delight the joy that Janet showed when she found a bird's nest.

"Too happy," she said. "But I will always have this happiness to remember. We've got to start thinking of the future, Joel. Do you think we'll go back to California in the autumn?"

Joel didn't answer her. He averted his face and made some comment about weeding the garden before supper time.

(To Be Continued)

She felt pitifully small to him.

THEATRES

AT THE CIRCLE

James Stewart is not handsome. His hair won't stay combed. Yet in the single year that he's been in Hollywood he has played important dramatic roles in "Rose Marie," "Wife Versus Secretary" and "Small Town Girl"; enacted the romantic lead in "Speed", and currently featured on the Circle screen along with such celebrities as Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, Lionel Barrymore, Franchot Tone and Melvyn Douglas in "The Gorgeous Hussy".

AT THE GRAND

During the filming of Universal's "Four Days Wonder," the film at the Grand theatre, the director had trouble keeping 13 year old Jeanne Dant's dog off the set, where he interrupted scenes to claim attention from his owner. Finally the animal was taken out quietly before Miss Dante noticed the procedure. "Where's my dog," she asked director Sidney Salkow, who replied, "A couple of large California fleas came in and took him away. They said they had been saving up for a nice big dog for a long time."

AT THE CLIFTONA

M-G-M-'s multi-star policy prevails in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney", which opened Sunday's run at the Cliftona with William Powell, Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery playing the leading roles. The important supporting cast includes Frank Morgan, Nigel Bruce, Benita Hume, Aileen Pringle, Jessie Ralph, Leonard Carey, Ralph Forbes, Melville Cooper, Lumsden Hare and Sara Haden.

The story introduces Miss Crawford as an American shop girl whose passion for society leads her to impersonate herself as an heiress with the result that she "crashes" the most exclusive circles of London and is besieged by marriage offers. The story rises to a dramatic climax when "Mrs. Cheyney" is revealed to be in league with a thief. How she extricates herself from the complications makes for one of the most amusing comedy romances of the season.

Party in Williamsport Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Daughter Hostesses Saturday

Mrs. Harry J. Dunlap and daughter, Miss Margaret, were joint hostesses at a dessert bridge, Saturday afternoon, at their home near Williamsport, honoring Mrs. William Dunlap, a bride of last November. Mrs. Dunlap is the former Miss Eleanor Brown, of Circleville.

The guests were invited for 2 o'clock. Eleven tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon. When the scores were tallied at the conclusion of the games, prizes were awarded Mrs. C. E. Dickey, of Greenfield, and Mrs. Brance Johnson.

The bride received a lovely guest prize.

The dessert course was served at the small tables which were made attractive for the service in a color scheme of green and white. Green carnations in bud vases were in the center of the tables. The color theme was continued in the ice cream and cake.

Among those invited for the pleasant affair were Mrs. Rockford Brown and Mrs. Everett Stocklen, of Circleville; Mrs. Dickey, Greenfield; Mrs. T. W. Heiskell and daughter Helen, of Bucyrus; Mrs. Helen Miller, Mrs. Royal Hamman, Mrs. George Hamman Jr., Mrs. Kenneth List, Mrs. Smith Hulse, Mrs. Russell Wardell, Mrs. Edward Wardell, Mrs. Tom Gephart, Mrs. White Campbell, Miss Mary Radcliffe, Miss Grace Pinsenchaum, Mrs. David Metzger.

Mrs. Tammie Marcy, Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, Mrs. Edna Newhouse, Mrs. George LeMay, Mrs. Ansel Smith, Miss Carolyn Bochard, Mrs. John Dunlap Sr., Mrs. Brance Johnson, Mrs. Edward Anderson, Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mrs. Sam Metzger, Mrs. George McGhee, Mrs. Frank Kibby, Mrs. Lee Luellen, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Alice Tipton, Mrs. Fred Tipton, Mrs. John Smith, Miss Virginia Smith, Mrs. Harry West.

Miss June West, Miss Helen West, Mrs. C. E. Hill, Mrs. Katie West, Miss Twila West, Miss Martha Tipton, Miss Betty McGhee, Mrs. W. D. Heiskell, Miss Mary Ann Heiskell, Mrs. Russell McDill, Mrs. John Dunlap Jr., Mrs. Arthur Dunlap, Mrs. Olive Hurst, Mrs. Emerson Hurley, Miss Laura McGhee, Mrs. William Radcliff and Miss Bernice Cotrell, of Williamsport; Mrs. Raymond French, of Wilmington.

* * *

Monroe Boys' Dinner

The Monroe township boys' basketball team was entertained at dinner, Saturday evening, at Hanley's tea room.

Following the dinner, Forrest Brown, coach and principal of Monroe school, as toastmaster, introduced the speakers.

They included, G. D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, who used for his subject, "Values Resulting from a Physical Education Program"; F. K. Blair county agent who talked about the personalities of some of the star collegiate and professional athletes played with or against, and R. L. Barton, superintendent, who concluded the program with a few brief remarks.

Nine of the boys received awards for the season's work.

The following boys were present Paul Holloway, Richard Williamson, Kenneth and Edwin Walters, seniors; Weldon Hill, David Stoer and Lyle Ingman, juniors; Warren Grover and Dwight Holloway, sophomores; Bill Dick and Paul J. Wills, freshmen.

Ensemble for Co-ed

THIS EXCEEDINGLY smart black wool ensemble is particularly delightful for the college girl. It poses a three-quarter cape of black wool over a paisley printed bodice dress. The costume is finished with a dramatic sailor of bengaline and patent leather.

Today's Recipes

LENTEN SHRIMP—One large can tomatoes, one minced onion, one minced pepper, two or three celery tops, one curl lemon peel or one clove garlic, salt and pepper, two or three slices cod or salmon, one-half pint oysters or clams, two small cans shrimp. Simmer first four ingredients ten minutes to make sauce. Add lemon peel or garlic. Strain sauce if desired. Add salt and pepper. Bring to boil and add fish in thin slices. Cook gently 15 minutes. Add oysters or clams, and the shrimp. Heat through, no more. Serve in soup plates with fluffy rice.

Party in Williamsport Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Daughter Hostesses Saturday

Mrs. Harry J. Dunlap and daughter, Miss Margaret, were joint hostesses at a dessert bridge, Saturday afternoon, at their home near Williamsport, honoring Mrs. William Dunlap, a bride of last November. Mrs. Dunlap is the former Miss Eleanor Brown, of Circleville.

The guests were invited for 2 o'clock. Eleven tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon. When the scores were tallied at the conclusion of the games, prizes were awarded Mrs. C. E. Dickey, of Greenfield, and Mrs. Brance Johnson.

The bride received a lovely guest prize.

The dessert course was served at the small tables which were made attractive for the service in a color scheme of green and white. Green carnations in bud vases were in the center of the tables. The color theme was continued in the ice cream and cake.

Among those invited for the pleasant affair were Mrs. Rockford Brown and Mrs. Everett Stocklen, of Circleville; Mrs. Dickey, Greenfield; Mrs. T. W. Heiskell and daughter Helen, of Bucyrus; Mrs. Helen Miller, Mrs. Royal Hamman, Mrs. George Hamman Jr., Mrs. Kenneth List, Mrs. Smith Hulse, Mrs. Russell Wardell, Mrs. Edward Wardell, Mrs. Tom Gephart, Mrs. White Campbell, Miss Mary Radcliffe, Miss Grace Pinsenchaum, Mrs. David Metzger.

Mrs. Tammie Marcy, Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, Mrs. Edna Newhouse, Mrs. George LeMay, Mrs. Ansel Smith, Miss Carelyn Bochard, Mrs. John Dunlap Sr., Mrs. Brance Johnson, Mrs. Edward Anderson, Mrs. Robert Anderson, Mrs. Sam Metzger, Mrs. George McGhee, Mrs. Frank Kibby, Mrs. Lee Luellen, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Alice Tipton, Mrs. Fred Tipton, Mrs. John Smith, Miss Virginia Smith, Mrs. Harry West.

Miss June West, Miss Helen West, Mrs. C. E. Hill, Mrs. Katie West, Miss Twila West, Miss Martha Tipton, Miss Betty McGhee, Mrs. W. D. Heiskell, Miss Mary Ann Heiskell, Mrs. Russell McDill, Mrs. John Dunlap Jr., Mrs. Arthur Dunlap, Mrs. Olive Hurst, Mrs. Emerson Hurley, Miss Laura McGhee, Mrs. William Radcliff and Miss Bernice Cotrell, of Williamsport; Mrs. Raymond French, of Wilmington.

Monroe Boys' Dinner

The Monroe township boys' basketball team was entertained at dinner, Saturday evening, at Hanley's tea room.

Following the dinner, Forrest Brown, coach and principal of Monroe school, as toastmaster, introduced the speakers.

They included, G. D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, who used for his subject, "Values Resulting from a Physical Education Program"; F. K. Blair county agent who talked about the personalities of some of the star collegiate and professional athletes played with or against, and R. L. Barton, superintendent, who concluded the program with a few brief remarks.

Nine of the boys received awards for the season's work.

The following boys were present Paul Holloway, Richard Williamson, Kenneth and Edwin Walters, seniors; Weldon Hill, David Stoer and Lyle Ingman, juniors; Warren Grover and Dwight Holloway, sophomores; Bill Dick and Paul J. Wills, freshmen.

OF SCHOOLS 1936 JOUST TO PLAY AGAIN

Seeding Employed in Draw to Divide Squads From Same District

THREE 'A' FIVES NEW

Many 'B' Outfits to Vie in First Ohio Contests

COLUMBUS, March 15 (UP) —Names linked with some of the brighter chapters of Ohio scholastic athletic history today were placed alongside those of "unknowns" as players on 32 teams made ready for an invasion of Columbus and a share of the glory that goes to competitors in the annual state basketball tournament which opens here Thursday.

The 32 teams, 16 in Class "A" and 16 in "Class "B," represent the survivors from a field of 1,100 that began the drive a month ago for the state championships now held by Newark and Sandusky St. Marys.

Coaches or representatives of the teams drew today in the offices of Commissioner H. R. Townsend for tournament opponents. A selective draw, which made it impossible for teams from the same district to meet in first round games, was employed.

Schools Listed

Class "A" teams which will battle here are Newark, Akron North, Salem, Warren, Canton McKinley, Massillon, Marietta, Ashland, Perrysburg, Rossford, Lima South, Middletown, Cincinnati Hughes, Hamilton Public, Dover and Bridgeport.

Seeking the Class "B" crown will be Sandusky St. Marys, Columbus Upper Arlington, Danville, Canal Fulton, South Amherst, Olmstead Falls, Lucasville, Middleport, Ottoville, Ontario, Bluffton, Enon, Lockland, Union City, Amsterdam, and Midvale.

In each class five of the teams that competed in the 1936 state tournament won their way here again.

The repeaters in the upper division were Newark, Canton McKinley, Marietta, Ashland and Bridgeport. In the lower classification they were Sandusky St. Marys, Canal Fulton, South Amherst, Lucasville and Amsterdam.

In Class "A" 13 of the 16 schools have sent teams to the state tournament previously since the meet was taken over in 1923 by the Ohio High School Athletic Association. The only "A" schools coming for the initial time are Warren, Perrysburg and Middletown. A fourth, Rossford, participated once before as a "B" team.

In Class "B" the alignment was entirely different. Ten of the teams are coming to a state tournament for the first time. Outside the five teams back from last year, Bluffton is the only entrant that had competed previously.

The latter is the lone team among the "B" schools ever to come to the court classic more than once before. Bluffton sent quintets here in 1923-29-31.

BUCKEYE NEGRO SETS NEW MARK FOR HIGH JUMP

CHICAGO, March 15 — (UP) — Michigan's reign over Big Ten indoor track extended into its fourth year today under the impetus of the fastest mile relay ever run on the boards in the Western conference.

Mel Walker of Ohio State captured the high jump from his teammate, Dave Albritton, and set a new Big Ten mark of 6 feet, 5¾ inches.

—0—

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW?

1. How long has Lou Gehrig been a member of the Yankees?
2. Can a man outjump a horse in a broad jump?
3. Where were the last Olympic winter sports held?

THE ANSWERS

1. Since 1925.
2. Record for a horse is 24 feet 11½ inches. Several track athletes have done 25 feet or better and Owens has done over 26.
3. Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany.

Riggs May Lose Third Base Job to Outlaw

TAMPA, Fla., March 15.—The greatest problem confronting Charley Dressen at the present time is the determination of the infield with which his Cincinnati Reds will start the National league season on April 20.

No decision will be made by Dressen about his inner defense until late in the training period, after he has had plenty of time to learn more about the capabilities of the men who are fighting for all places.

Riggs vs. Outlaw

At the moment, his toughest job appears to be centered in the third base problem. There Lew Riggs and Jimmy Outlaw are battling for the regular spot. Riggs is a veteran in comparison to Outlaw, a raw rookie, who recently passed into his 22nd year. Riggs has played two seasons of regular National league competition. Outlaw has only been playing professional baseball for three years.

Dressen's problem is intensified because there was not a gaping spot at third base last year. Riggs did bog down in his hitting, compared to 1935, but he still was a pretty acceptable ball player.

Almost as important is the fight being waged for first base. Les Scarsella, who batted .313 for the Reds last year, his first in the big time, faces competition from big Frank McCormick, the giant who led the Piedmont league in batting with an impressive .381 mark.

Scarsella still is the regular first sacker and will be until and unless he drops off. This seems unlikely, for Les has been slamming the ball to all corners in practice sessions. His terrific training wallops have given Charley Dressen an idea. Charley has sent McCormick to the outfield at intervals to get acclimated for emergencies that might arise in the event Frank is not successful in his attempts to oust Scarsella.

Alex Kampouris, last year's second base guardian, is fighting with Charley Gelbert for second base. Gelbert looks great, but Kampouris also has shown improvement.

Myers To Keep Job

Captain Billy Myers is surer of his shortstop position than any other member of the infield. His competition is Eddie Miller, from Toronto, and Eddie Joost, from the coast. Miller looks like a marvelous fielder, but Myers' all around play makes his job pretty safe. He is completely recovered from the abdominal operation that laid him low in the middle of last season.

BIG TEN VOTES TO END CENTER JUMP FOR YEAR

CHICAGO, March 15 — (UP) — Elimination of the basketball center jump by the Big Ten — second major college conference to adopt new, high speed rules — indicated today the national rules committee may abolish the jump in colleges and high schools all over the nation.

The proposal will be considered today by the National Basketball Coaches Association and likely will be presented to the rules committee Tuesday or Wednesday.

Every coach in the Big Ten voted to drop the jump for one year before passing definite legislation. Following the example set by the Pacific coast conference two years ago, Big Ten teams will use the jump only to start each half, open the overtime period and after technical and double fouls.

After each field goal or free throw, the ball will be put into play out of bounds under the basket of the team scored on and in possession of that team. This rule, applied to free throws only, has been used in the western conference for two seasons.

JOE DIMAGGIO WINS FIGHT FOR $15,000 SALARY

ST. PETERSBURG, March 15—(UP)—Outfielder Joe Di Maggio who his holdout siege for $15,000, is expected to join the Yankees before they journey to Daytona Beach tomorrow to take another cut at National league pitching against the Cardinals.

The world champions fattened up their exhibition batting averages against the Boston Bees. Red Rolfe led the Yank attack with a double and two singles as they took their second straight from the Bees, 2 to 1.

Coast Fighter Strong In First 11 Contests

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 15— (UP)—Introducing Robert Edward Nestell—a young Hollywood heavyweight who looks enough like Gene Tunney to almost be his twin-brother and who packs a wallop that some boxing critics say is almost as hard as Jack Dempsey's was in his hey day.

With Joe Louis advancing toward the heavyweight throne, young Nestell is regarded as the latest of "white hopes." At least that is the assertion of his manager Gus Wilson, who once trained Georges Carpentier and who later became Dempsey's chief handler.

Backing this contention, Gus points to young Bob's record—10 knockout victories in his last 11 start. Since he won a six-round decision victory over Jack Darcy in his professional debut, no one has gone the limit with Nestell.

Plays Good Golf

Bob was born in democratic Hot Springs, Cal., and then moved to North Hollywood. He was fast enough to star as end on his high-school football team and was a member of the swimming squad. He became an excellent golfer while picking up spare change as a caddy.

Bob's mother, who was one-eighth Indian, died when he was 2 years old and his father, a mining engineer, devoted himself to his son. He did everything possible to further Bob's pugilistic talents. He had Bob put on the gloves when he was 6 years old and has kept him busy with his mitts ever since.

Bob lost his first fight as an amateur but wasn't campaigning long before he was spotted by Wilson. Gus took him in tow on Oct. 23, 1935 and inaugurated a rigorous training schedule. He entered Bob in the Pacific Coast Golden Gloves' championship in which the youngster won the championship of his class.

In 38 Amateur Bouts

Nestell participated in 38 amateur bouts before he made his professional start at Hollywood's American Legion Stadium, the same ring in which he won his amateur title.

He is 6 feet 1½ inches tall and weighs 192 pounds. Bob is modest and retiring, preferring to spend his time sketching. He is a crack rifle shot and can do tricks with a rope. Most of his time, when he isn't home with his wife and infant daughter, is spent hunting and fishing.

He is a careful eater, preferring light foods rather than heavy ones, firmly believing the latter make him sluggish and slow on his feet.

One Journey Recalled

One basketball trip is recalled wherein East Liverpool and Steubenville were visited, one played on Friday evening and the other on Saturday. — A bed was broken, two water pitchers shattered, one on the pavement after an uninterrupted fall from the fourth floor, a bellhop was pulled through a transom when entrance through the door was refused, the hotel manager was locked out of the team's rooms, and a high school superintendent received a bill two weeks later for $75, figured by the hostelry as approximately the amount of damage done. — no overnight trip to the Eastern Ohio cities was ever again scheduled.

Hilarity Necessary

Hilarity is bound to accompany a state tournament regardless of Mr. Townsend's or anyone else's decree. — True, some boards of education might raise ned about bills received later, but regardless of all that the basketball players and their followers are bound for some fun. — After all what is there to amateur athletics in addition to the fun of competition and the trips provided where T-bone steaks become so common they are no longer relished, and that means plenty of T-bones. * * *

32 TEAMS WIN PLACES IN STATE CAGE TOURNEY OPENING THURSDAY

10 OF SCHOOLS IN 1936 JOUST TO PLAY AGAIN

Seeding Employed in Draw to Divide Squads From Same District

THREE 'A' FIVES NEW

Many 'B' Outfits to Vie in First Ohio Contests

COLUMBUS, March 15—(UP)—Names linked with some of the brighter chapters of Ohio scholastic athletic history today were placed alongside those of "unknowns" as players on 32 teams made ready for an invasion of Columbus and a share of the glory that goes to competitors in the annual state basketball tournament which opens here Thursday.

The 32 teams, 16 in Class "A" and 16 in "Class "B," represent the survivors from a field of 1,100 that began the drive a month ago for the state championships now held by Newark and Sandusky St. Marys.

Coaches or representatives of the teams drew today in the offices of Commissioner H. R. Townsend for tournament opponents. A selective draw, which made it impossible for teams from the same district to meet in first round games, was employed.

Schools Listed

Class "A" teams which will battle here are Newark, Akron North, Salem, Warren, Canton McKinley, Massillon, Marietta, Ashland, Perrysburg, Rossford, Lima South, Middletown, Cincinnati Hughes, Hamilton Public, Dover and Bridgeport.

Seeking the Class "B" crown will be Sandusky St. Marys, Columbus Upper Arlington, Danville, Canal Fulton, South Amherst, Olmstead Falls, Lucasville, Middleport, Ottoville, Ontario, Bluffton, Enon, Lockland, Union City, Amsterdam, and Midvale.

In each class five of the teams that competed in the 1936 state tournament won their way here again.

The repeaters in the upper division were Newark, Canton McKinley, Marietta, Ashland and Bridgeport. In the lower classification they were Sandusky St. Marys, Canal Fulton, South Amherst, Lucasville and Amsterdam.

In Class "A" 13 of the 16 schools have sent teams to the state tournament previously since the meet was taken over in 1923 by the Ohio High School Athletic Association. The only "A" schools coming for the initial time are Warren, Perrysburg and Middletown. A fourth, Rossford, participated once before as a "B" team.

In Class "B" the alignment was entirely different. Ten of the teams are coming to a state tournament for the first time. Outside the five teams back from last year, Bluffton is the only entrant that had competed previously.

The latter is the lone team among the "B" schools ever to come to the court classic more than once before. Bluffton sent quintets here in 1923-29-31.

BUCKEYE NEGRO SETS NEW MARK FOR HIGH JUMP

CHICAGO, March 15 — (UP) — Michigan's reign over Big Ten indoor track extended into its fourth year today under the impetus of the fastest mile relay ever run on the boards in the Western conference.

Mel Walker of Ohio State captured the high jump from his teammate, Dave Albritton, and set a new Big Ten mark of 6 feet, 5¾ inches.

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW?

1. How long has Lou Gehrig been a member of the Yankees?
2. Can a man outjump a horse in a broad jump?
3. Where were the last Olympic winter sports held?

THE ANSWERS

1. Since 1923.
2. Record for a horse is 24 feet 11½ inches. Several track athletes have done 25 feet or better and Owens has done over 26.
3. Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany.

Riggs May Lose Third Base Job to Outlaw

TAMPA, Fla., March 15.—The greatest problem confronting Charley Dressen at the present time is the determination of the infield with which his Cincinnati Reds will start the National league season on April 20.

No decision will be made by Dressen about his inner defense until late in the training period, after he has had plenty of time to learn more about the capabilities of the men who are fighting for all places.

Riggs vs. Outlaw

At the moment, his toughest job appears to be centered in the third base problem. There Lew Riggs and Jimmy Outlaw are battling for the regular spot. Riggs is a veteran in comparison to Outlaw, a raw rookie, who recently passed into his 22nd year. Riggs has played two seasons of regular National league competition. Outlaw has only been playing professional baseball for three years.

Dressen's problem is intensified because there was not a gaping spot at third base last year. Riggs did bog down in his hitting, compared to 1935, but he still was a pretty acceptable ball player.

Almost as important is the fight being waged for first base. Les Scarsella, who batted .313 for the Reds last year, his first in the big time, faces competition from big Frank McCormick, the giant who led the Piedmont league in batting with an impressive .381 mark.

Scarsella still is the regular first sacker and will be until and unless he drops off. This seems unlikely, for Les has been slamming the ball to all corners in practice sessions. His terrific training wallops have given Charley Dressen an idea. Charley has sent McCormick to the outfield at intervals to get acclimated for emergencies that might arise in the event Frank is not successful in his attempts to oust Scarsella.

Alex Kampouris, last year's second base guardian, is fighting with Charley Gelbert for second base. Gelbert looks great, but Kampouris also has shown improvement.

Myers To Keep Job

Captain Billy Myers is surer of his shortstop position than any other member of the infield. His competition is Eddie Miller, from Toronto, and Eddie Joost, from the coast. Miller looks like a marvelous fielder, but Myers' all around play makes his job pretty safe. He is completely recovered from the abdominal operation that laid him low in the middle of last season.

BIG TEN VOTES TO END CENTER JUMP FOR YEAR

CHICAGO, March 15 — (UP) — Elimination of the basketball center jump by the Big Ten — second major college conference to adopt new, high speed rules — indicated today the national rules committee may abolish the jump in colleges and high schools all over the nation.

The proposal will be considered today by the National Basketball Coaches Association and likely will be presented to the rules committee Tuesday or Wednesday.

Every coach in the Big Ten voted to drop the jump for one year before passing definite legislation. Following the example set by the Pacific coast conference two years ago, Big Ten teams will use the jump only to start each half, open the overtime period and after technical and double fouls.

A Recipe For Results

If you want to hire a maid, rent a room, lease your home, sell your furniture, get rid of your car, find a partner, sell your business, recover a lost dog, engage a typist there is a sure, quick and economical way to do it. Use Herald Want Ads. One Day—2 Cents a Word; Three Days—4 Cents a Word; Six Days—7 Cents a Word.

Here's how easy it is:

Decide what you want to say in your ad. Then write, leaving out unnecessary words.

CALL 782 if you have a phone or drop by the service desk, Herald office. Read your ad to the ad-taker. She will help you with it, perhaps shorten it, and then will read it back to you for O. K.

That's all . . . except to sit back and wait for results which won't be long in coming because nearly everyone reads the Herald Classified Ads.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A SERIOUS WEAKNESS

A LARGE percentage of players have some weakness, in mannerisms, intonation, or peculiarity in bidding or playing which becomes chronic, unless checked in time. Shrewd opponents take advantage of all apparent weaknesses. East never could resist doubling a contract against which he expected to win in his own hand all except the one setting trick. He trusted partner for that one trick. As a result of this weakness, South regularly milked East's doubles, by redoubling each of them that he did not consider sound, as he did with the deal shown.

	♠ None ♥ 10 8 5 2 ♦ K 10 8 7 6 ♣ J 10 9 6
♠ 7 5 2 ♥ K Q 9 3 ♦ Q 9 5 3 ♣ 8 3	W. N. E. S.	♠ K Q 9 6 ♥ J 7 6 4 ♦ A J 2 ♣ K 7
	♠ A J 10 8 4 3 ♥ A ♦ 4 ♣ A Q 5 4 2

Bidding went: South, 2-Spades; North, 2-No Trumps, to show he held no quick trick; South, 3-Clubs; North, 4-Clubs; South, 4-Spades, to show great preference for the major suit; North, 5-Clubs; East, doubled; South, redoubled.

The opening lead was the K of hearts. Declarer's lone Ace won. Dummy ruffed a low spade. The J of clubs was led. East declined to cover. Declarer let the finesse go. The 3 falling at his left failed to tell him whether East held the K alone, or the K-8, but he could not afford to lead another trump.

Declarer ruffed a heart return from dummy. Dummy ruffed a low spade. Declarer took his sixth by ruffing another heart from dummy. Dummy ruffed the seventh trick, which was a low spade. East had to drop his Q, but dummy's last trump was used. Declarer won the eighth trick, by leading dummy's last heart and ruffing with the Q, leaving him only the Ace of clubs, with the K-8 missing. If both trumps did not fall on the lead of declarer's Ace of clubs, he would have to go down. South led the Ace of clubs. The 8 dropped at his left and the K at his right, cleaning up that suit nicely. Then South ran off his Ace of spades and two long spades, just giving him a small slam, or one doubled and redoubled trick over his contract. He had to give the doubler one diamond trick, but East persisted in telling his partner that his double had been sound.

	♠ K 8 ♥ K J 10 5 2 ♦ K 10 5 ♣ K J 2
♠ J 9 7 5 4 3 ♥ 8 6 ♦ J 9 7 ♣ 10 5	W. N. E. S.	♠ A Q 10 2 ♥ A Q 9 ♦ A Q 8 ♣ A Q 9
	♠ 6 ♥ 7 4 3 ♦ 6 4 3 2 ♣ 8 7 6 4 3

West is declarer. The contract is 7-Spades. The opening lead is the J of hearts. Before tomorrow see how many tricks declarer can win, against the best subsequent defense.

...o Columbus Men Taken to Berger Hospital for Treatment

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE

Orval Minnier Car Strikes Tree North of City

Orval Minnier, 24, of S. Sylvan avenue, Columbus, was admitted to Berger hospital about 6 a. m. Sunday for treatment of cuts and bruises about the head and a severely bruised knee suffered when his auto crashed into a tree on Court street at the north corporation line.

Minnier told Officer Fred Fitzpatrick he went to sleep while driving north. He was taken to the hospital in the police cruiser. Hospital attendants said he would probably be discharged Monday.

Trainman Injured

George W. Markin, 61, of 1698 Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Norfolk & Western employe, was taken to Berger hospital about 12:35 a. m. Sunday for treatment of a scalp wound suffered when a train on which he was riding made a sudden stop when some trouble developed in the air brakes.

Markin, conductor on the train, an extra freight, was riding in the caboose. He was thrown against a door. He was removed from the caboose near the freight house and taken to the hospital in the police cruiser. Markin was to be discharged from the hospital Monday.

Autos of Fred H. Mitchell, Williamsport, Route 1, and Paul Olney, 411 S. Washington street, were damaged at 1 a. m. Sunday in a collision on E. Main street No one was injured. Officers said Mitchell was driving west on Main and Olney was going east. The collision resulted when one swerved to avoid striking a parked truck extending into the street.

DYKSTRA LEAVES CINCINNATI JOB TO HEAD SCHOOL

CHICAGO, March 15—(UP)—Clarence Addison Dykstra, 54, prepared today to give up $10,000 annual income and his job as city manager of Cincinnati so he could become president of the University of Wisconsin.

The presidency was offered Dykstra yesterday by the executive committee of the university's regents. Dykstra said he would accept. Committee members announced the offer and acceptance would be presented to a full meeting of the regents at Madison, Wis., for confirmation March 18.

Dykstra will succeed Dr. Glenn Frank, whose 11-year tenure was terminated by the regents Jan. 7 on charges of mismanagement. It appeared uncertain when Dykstra would take office. He said he could be in Madison "in six weeks or so," but added he desired to "become acquainted with the university before taking up the official duties."

As city manager of Cincinnati since 1930, Dykstra has received $25,000 a year. As University of Wisconsin president he probably will receive $15,000 annually, in addition to a home, automobile and chauffeur.

FATHER'S BLOW KILLS SUITOR OF LITTLE GIRL, 9

CHICAGO, March 15—(UP)—Andrew Hoagland, 35, killed the man who said he was going to marry his nine-year-old daughter, and waited in jail today for police to decide what to do with him.

The victim was Edward Kraftheffer, 35, roomer at Hoagland's house and one of his best friends. He died of a skull fracture after Hoagland struck him with his fist and knocked him against a wall.

Hoagland surrendered to police, was held without charge or bail. Assistant State's Attorney Sam Patanek indicated possible grand jury action.

Work in Sugar Camps, Chicken Thefts Recalled

Season Brings Memories of Many Happy Days Among 'Youngsters'

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

This season of the year brings recollections to our "Youngster Family" some seventy-five of them now on the list, and more coming in most every day, of the sugar camp season when thousands of sugar and maple trees gave up their sap which was converted into molasses and sugar by the boiling process either in large iron kettles or the boiling vat.

A temporary shack, cheaply constructed, was built within easy hauling distance to the boiling kettles or pans, usually with sleeping accommodations, because some one or two had to be on the job to keep the fires booming and the sap at the highest boiling point. And what a wonderful opportunity this afforded for a chicken roast. And too, in those sugar-water boiling days it was not exactly necessary that the chickens come in to the roasting quarters, from your own chicken roosts, mostly trees in those days. Neighborhood chickens really did have a better flavor than your own, anyway. One of these old-timer chicken roasting "thieves" told us just the other day that had the present one-year pen service for stealing chickens been in vogue then, he'd be in for life right now. No, don't ask me an questions, can't tell on him, it wasn't Rev. Ricketts though — says he never stole a chicken in his whole life — and we say he's missed a lot. Might just as wel' tell you now.

The "other boys" were out on a "roasting party" one night and those of "the gang" who were to deliver "the goods" for the roast brought in a turkey. A "council of war" was at once held and the boys who had brought in the fine gobbler, were sentenced to take Mr. Turkey back to the roost from whence he came and the order was complied with willingly — "carrying a good thing too far" they said. There was a lot of honor among those "old time thieves" because they never stole more birds than they could conveniently carry.

Two Columbus Men Taken to Berger Hospital for Treatment

TWO AUTOS COLLIDE

Orval Minnier Car Strikes Tree North of City

Orval Minnier, 24, of S. Sylvan avenue, Columbus, was admitted to Berger hospital about 6 a. m. Sunday for treatment of cuts and bruises about the head and a severely bruised knee suffered when his auto crashed into a tree on Court street at the north corporation line.

Minnier told Officer Fred Fitzpatrick he went to sleep while driving north. He was taken to the hospital in the police cruiser. Hospital attendants said he would probably be discharged Monday.

Trainman Injured

George W. Markin, 61, of 1698 Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Norfolk & Western employe, was taken to Berger hospital about 12:35 a. m. Sunday for treatment of a scalp wound suffered when a train on which he was riding made a sudden stop when some trouble developed in the air brakes.

Markin, conductor on the train, an extra freight, was riding in the caboose. He was thrown against a door. He was removed from the caboose near the freight house and taken to the hospital in the police cruiser. Markin was to be discharged from the hospital Monday.

Autos of Fred H. Mitchell, Williamsport, Route 1, and Paul Olney, 411 S. Washington street, were damaged at 1 a. m. Sunday in a collision on E. Main street No one was injured.
